DECLASSIFIED

FRIDAY
APRIL 16, 1954

Good Friday. E. went to town and attended church, returning in the afternoon with Nancy. I walked to Versailles and promenaded around the town.

Talked to Tommy on the telephone. The American assurances were released today.

Nancy and I motored to the Trianon and visited the Hameau. The restoration of the buildings has been almost completed. I don't like the Hameau -- it is pseudo-picturesque and gimcracky. Nor am I particularly taken with the English park; it does not compare favorably with the parks of many English private places.
